

Sponsored by Saint Louis University's Cultures of American Religion group with support from the Office of Graduate Education. Co-sponsored by the Center for Research on Global Catholicism at SLU.

"STILL MINING THE FORGOTTEN: BLACK CATHOLIC NUNS IN UNITED STATES HISTORY"

In celebration of Black Catholic History Month, and in honor of the fourth anniversary of the death of Sister Mary Antona Ebo, FSM, we are honored to welcome:

SHANNEN DEE WILLIAMS
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF HISTORY
UNIVERSITY OF DAYTON

THURSDAY
11.11.2021
6PM CST

Webinar register here:
<https://slu.zoom.us/j/91221111111>

Professor Williams is also hosting a small lunch-time Zoom conversation with students and others interested in her work.

Please email kate.moran@slu.edu to join us.

Image caption: During the Jim Crow era, five of the daughters of Charles and Emma Burks of the historically Black St. Augustine Catholic Church in Louisville, Kentucky entered the Oblate Sisters of Providence in Baltimore, Maryland, owing to the anti-Black admissions policies of the white orders ministering in their home archdiocese. Four Burks sisters remained in the order until their deaths.

- Photograph is courtesy of Sylvia Miles